“Property Invigilator” Image Design - “ProMan”

The Property Management Services Authority (PMSA) officially announced at the “Property Invigilator” Image Design Competition Awards Presentation Ceremony cum Continuing Professional Development Seminar held on August 1, 2025, that the winning design of the tertiary institute category “ProMan” will be adopted in PMSA’s future events to promote the development of the property management (PM) industry and enhance professional status and standard of the industry.

The design of “ProMan” draws inspiration from the PMSA logo, with its distinctive “house-shaped head” design symbolizing the close connection between properties and PM practitioners. The proportion of a large head and a slender body signifies that PM practitioners are equipped with extensive professional knowledge, always ready to serve and ensuring normal and smooth operation in our everyday life.

ProMan has a lifelike figure, and is friendly and can move agilely, embodying flexibility and efficiency, while putting on a PM Practitioner warrant card to signify professionalism, reliability and integrity.

ProMan has full gender compatibility and can be either a male or female. Facing the diverse challenges of PM work, ProMan can adapt to various roles as needed, flexibly handling tasks covering facility management, cleaning and security, maintenance and repair, financial management, and the use of advanced technology. ProMan is versatile and capable in all respects, forming an elite team that upholds the three core values of the PM industry: “Quality,” “Integrity,” and “Advancement.” With wholehearted dedication, ProMan strives to provide high-quality, professional PM services, invigilating the health, wealth, and safety of our properties, contributing positively for the community to work and live in harmony.
